

Circus next week—Daddy take the kids.

Never was such weather for tobacco cutting as the past two weeks.

A house, a house. My Kingdom for a house. And the Kingdom goes a-begging—in Lancaster.

Garden truck was given a severe jolt by dry weather, and in keeping with everything else is scarce and high.

Several local Nimrods are anxiously awaiting a telephone call from "Charity" saying the river is right, to leave for Rockcastle.

About this time last year the "flu" epidemic made its appearance, lets use every precaution and not contribute to its recurrence.

The city reservoir has been drained and given a thorough cleaning, and the water pipes have been flushed, as a precautionary measure.

Tobacco cutting and housing is going forward rapidly, and farmers are jubilant at the thought of marketing their crops at home this year.

Rooms for rent for light house keeping, furnished or unfurnished, for balance of year 1919.

Mrs. Maud Bogie.

The old "chute well" has been closed and sealed by the health authorities, an examination of the water showing the presence of typhoid germs.

"Garrard's own" Tobacco warehouse is nearing completion and the musical, if unintelligible, voice of the auctioneer will be heard at home with the opening of the season.

Don't forget the Walter Fain and Bob Long Sale Saturday, Sept. 13th. W. T. King the Auctioneer tells us he is going to sell the land and personal property regardless of price, so come out and buy at your own price.

This is the time of year when typhoid is most prevalent. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, and a thorough overhauling and cleansing of your premises might save a human life, or a big doctors bill.

Ice Cream Supper.

An outdoor ice cream supper with music and humorous readings will be given at the Buena Vista Consolidated School Saturday evening Sept. 13th, from seven to ten o'clock. Proceeds to be used in furnishing assistant teachers rooms in the new Teacherage.

Col. Bain Lectures.

Under the auspices of the local W. C. T. U., Col. George W. Bain of Lexington, lectured at the Christian church Sunday night, every church in town suspending services for the occasion. His lecture was in the interest of the ratification of the prohibition amendment at the coming November election.

Col. Bain, notwithstanding he is in his 80th year, is a forceful speaker and holds his audience with the earnestness of his remarks.

Buildings Going

Up Rapidly.

There is more building going on in Lancaster and throughout the country than ever known in its history. This too in spite of high prices of material and scarcity of labor. Many houses are in course of erection in Lancaster, and more in contemplation before snow flies.

The boom is not confined to the town, as Paint Lick, Bryantsville and in fact throughout the entire county is witnessing the erection of many new buildings.

Wanted Old

False Teeth.

We pay $1 to $20 per set for them in any condition. Broken parts in proportion. We also pay highest cash prices for old crowns, bridge-work, broken jewelry and old silver of all kinds. Mail it to us—your money sent by return mail.

AUTOMOBILE DRIVERS

Grow More Reckless As Number Of Machines Increase.

But a few years ago when the automobile craze was in its incipiency there existed a tacit brotherhood between drivers; should one have a blowout, puncture, or encounter any kind of trouble on the road, every passing driver would stop and tender his services, would divide his last drop of "gas", or cheerfully render any assistance in his power.

But alas, how times have changed, should the one to be in trouble, even we are ashamed to say, for of the gentler sex, it would not attract the attention, much less the care and assistance of the average passerby.

Of course there are Good Samaritans, even in this speed crazed age, who are ever willing and ready to assist their unfortunate fellow motorists, but they are the exception rather than the rule, and the motorists who encounter trouble on the road must resort to the nearest telephone and have a "trouble man" sent from the nearest garage to aid in his distress.

Aside from abandoning of the courtesies which were once considered due from one motorist to another, there seems to be cultivated among a great number of drivers an absolute disregard for the rules of the road, the laws of the land or the comfort and safety of the pedestrian who is compelled to travel by any other mode than the gas route.

Sighting a horse drawn vehicle in the distance, they begin to blow frantically until the vehicle has given them the greater portion of the highway, then oftentimes passing so close as to place the occupants of the buggy or wagon in danger of being overturned should their horses shy at the dust encircled passing machine. They seem to be oblivious of the fact that the horse drawn vehicles are entitled to just as much road, just as much consideration as their own machine.

Nor is this reckless and speed mania confined to the country roads; right within the limits of the city of Lancaster, not occasionally, but every day, the machines race to and fro along our streets with absolute disregard for the laws governing traffic and speed within the city limits; to the imminent peril of pedestrians; scattering dust, dust, poverty and consternation in their wake.

These things are not, as they should be; drivers of automobiles should have some consideration for the lives and property of their fellow men, should not drive as if they were going for a physician every time they leave their garage, should exercise some judgment, should realize that there are other beings in the town and country besides the automobile.

These things have been pointed out and drawn to their attention repeatedly, but without having been regarded; a persistency in these foolish and dangerous practices can but result in some most deplorable accident, the loss of human life, perhaps the grinding out of the life of a little child under the wheels of a recklessly driven car, right here in Lancaster. We know not how soon or whose child it may be. Take warning before it is too late, drive your car at a moderate speed, make the streets of Lancaster safe for the children, and perhaps save your hands from the stain of their innocent blood.

For those who will not heed the warning, who will not bark to the call of justice and humanity, who persist in overspeeding, there is a law.

Let us insist that our officers apply it, and when these persistent violators are haled to the bar of justice, let it be applied to the fullest extent. It would seem wrong to them, of course to curtail their pleasure, but it might save a human life.

Think it over Mr. Fast Driver.

Horses Wanted.

Will buy two single or matched teams of young heavy dapple gray, black or bay horses, weight 3200 to 3600 pounds. Also want young heavy spotted horses.

LANCASTER RAPIDLY

Forging To The Front, Ranks Among The Most Progressive Towns In The State.

Less than a quarter of a century ago it was the consensus of opinion among the residents of Lancaster that "Lancaster would never amount to much, it was on a branch railroad, nothing but farming to depend upon and nothing to make it".

These same people have doubtless reached a realization of the fact that Lancaster is growing in spite of herself, in fact is rapidly outgrowing herself. In truth the city limits should be extended with the least possible delay. Even now the city water mains are being extended beyond the city limits, as are the light wires, and suburban residents are enjoying all the advantages of the city residents, without the taxation.

A few brief words as to the cause of this rapid growth; first we may attribute it to our school, it is an undisputed fact that Lancaster has one of the best graded and high schools in the state. This has attracted a great many people, not only from the county, but from a distance, who have moved in and must be accommodated.

Another great factor in the growth of Lancaster is the fertility of the soil of the county; Garrard is heralded the world over as one of the most productive counties of the most productive states in the Union.

Two Garrard county products alone would have made it famous; "Sam's Hurt corn cob pipes" and "Kelleys burley tobacco", to smoke in them, are known the world over and are sufficient of themselves to put us on the map.

The production of from five to eight millions of tobacco annually, and the best tobacco that goes over the Kentucky breaks, is bound to attract attention from the outside world, and the unprecedented demand for our land, and the almost fabulous prices being offered therefore, shows that our fame has not gone unheralded.

Nor is tobacco our only reliance, we raise hemp, as good, and in as great quantity as any of the blue grass counties, wheat, corn and the small grains in proportion, to say nothing of the enormous amount of live stock, poultry and produce that is shipped from the county annually.

No wonder Lancaster grows, that she has outgrown herself.

Right now there is not sufficient houses in Lancaster to accommodate our own people, and it is an every day occurrence for someone from a distance to conduct an unsuccessful search for a house, either to rent or buy. Houses are going up rapidly, but not rapidly enough to supply the demand.

Building lots are high, building material is high and labor both skilled and unskilled is high and very scarce yet with all that we can conceive of no better investment than the erection of a few apartment houses and a number of small residences or cottages for sale or rent.

The opening this fall of our handsome new $100,000 tobacco warehouse is going to cause an influx of people to Lancaster; there will be the managers, book-keepers and various people connected with the operation of the house, to say nothing of the buyers, handlers and others who are attracted by the tobacco interests, many of them with families; all to be housed and cared for. It is going to tax us to our uttermost, hotels, boarding houses and dwellings to care for them.

Many of these will be most desirable people people who we would be glad to have become permanent residents, and upon the way we care for them will depend their stay. So it may be readily seen that it behoves us to get busy and prepare for the influx, be ready to accommodate them when they come, make their situation pleasant make them want to stay, make Lancaster what she easily can be made, one of the leading tobacco markets on the state.

LANCASTER

Graded and High School Opens What Promises To Be Most Successful Year.

The Lancaster Graded and High School opened Sept. 1st, for the 1919-20 term under the most auspicious circumstances and the present term gives promise of being the most successful in the history of the institution. There was a liberal attendance of the patrons of the school, both from town and country, giving evidence of the deep interest being taken in the school by the parents. This is of itself is a source of great encouragement to the faculty, and has a tendency to cause them to redouble their efforts to further interests of this splendid school.

The attendance the first day was 355, but has already increased to 365, and within two more weeks the 400 mark is expected to be passed.

The opening exercises were conducted by Rev. H. S. Hudson, assisted by Rev. Dawes, and the ministers of the city, following their usual custom, will give liberally of their time in assisting in the Chapel exercises.

Following is the personnel of the faculty for the current term:

Principal, Prof. P. H. Hopkins, Assistant Principals, Miss Robinson and Mrs. Hopkins and Miss Margaret Sexton.

Junior High School Miss Eliza Smith, Miss Burchett.

Grade 1, Miss Lucretia Skinner, Buena Vista.

Grade 2, Miss Amanda Anderson.

Grade 3, Miss Ethel Estridge, of Paint Lick.

Grade 4, Miss Ada Rich.

Grade 5, Miss Myrtle Ruble, of Buena Vista.

Grade 6, Miss Martha Kavanaugh.

Mrs. Mae Hughes Noland will have charge of the musical department and already has a very large class, with splendid prospects for liberal additions as the term progresses.

The majority of the teachers above mentioned have been connected with the school for several years and their ability is well known. The teachers from a distance who have been added to the faculty were chosen with great care, and come highly recommended as experienced educators.

It will be noticed that several of the new teachers are Garrard county girls, who have had years of experience in the schools of the county, and whose ability are well known.

The school board left no stone unturned to secure the very best teachers and it is thought that the present faculty is one of the very best that ever started on a term of the school.

Lancaster and Garrard county may well be proud of this splendid institution, for it has done more than any other factor to give us the steady, healthy growth which we are now enjoying.

Garrard County Mare Wins At Louisville.

The five year old mare Flashlight, raised and owned by Harry Francis won the class for combined mares, any age at the State Fair at Louisville Monday night. She was later sold at a fancy price to Avery S. Cooney of Chicago. The mare is sired by Rex Peavine, dam Barcela, and has won every ring she has entered in Kentucky, including the Championship at Bowling Green. She was trained and exhibited by E. T. Doty of Richmond.

This is the amount of the Auction Sale of S. R. Wilder and Sons held in Mercer County on the 9th by Swinebroad. Two Garrard County men are purchasers. They like to buy through Messrs. Swinebroad and Moss because they have confidence in their judgement as to values and know these real estate men will not try to get them to pay more for the land than it is worth and know all the time they are getting a square deal.

209.97 acres was bought by I. S. Brown at $300.00 per acre, 84.21 acres by J. A. Conn at $274.50 per acre, 61.28 acres by Grover Ballard at $163.50 per acre and G. L. Sowder 39.02 acres at $165.00 per acre. Swinebroad's slogan "Always Sells" still remains set up in type.

STANLEY HERRON

Soon To Arrive Home Service At The Front.

Friends here will be interested to learn that Stanley Herron, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther E. Herron, has landed in New York, after two years service in France. Stanley Herron enlisted two years ago last May, and was soon sent to France where he has been in active service since. He was the first to volunteer from here, and was among the first American troops to go to France. He has received two citations from General Parker for valiant service at the battle front.

Below are a few of the many things his division did.

"First American Troops to Land in France and last to go home."

"First in Sector."

"First to shoot at Germans."

"First to Attack."

"First to Conduct a Raid."

"First to be Raided."

"First to capture prisoners."

"First to suffer Casualties."

"First to be cited singly in general orders."

"First in number of division, corps and Army Commanders and General Staff Officers produced from its personnel."

"In front line 220 days."

"Captured 163 officers and 6,304 men, 119 pieces of field artillery, 62 trench mortars, 413 machine guns."

"Casualties 21,612."

"Killed and died of wounds 4,111."

"Replacements received 50,206."

"Distinguished service crosses won 356."

Watch Out For Swinebroad's Other Sales.

He tells us he is figuring on something good for the buyers right here in Garrard as well as other Counties.

A FAMILY MEDICINE
In Her Mother's Home, Says This Georgia Lady, Regarding Black-Draught. Relief From Headache, Malaria, Chills, Etc.

Ringgold, Ga.—Mrs. Chas. Gaston, of this place, writes: "I am a user of Thedford's Black-Draught; in fact, it was one of our family medicines. Also in my mother's home, when I was a child. When any of us children complained of headache, usually caused by constipation, she gave us a dose of Black-Draught, which would rectify the trouble. Often in the spring, we would have malaria and chills, or troubles of this kind, we would take Black-Draught pretty regular until the liver acted well, and we would soon be up and around again. We would not be without it, for it certainly has saved us lots of doctor bills. Just a dose of Black-Draught when not so well saves a lot of days in bed."

Thedford's Black-Draught has been used for many years in the treatment of stomach, liver and bowel troubles, and the popularity which it now enjoys is proof of its merit.

If your liver is not doing its duty, you will suffer from such disagreeable symptoms as headache, biliousness, constipation, indigestion, etc., and unless something is done, serious trouble may result.

Thedford's Black-Draught has been found a valuable remedy for these troubles. It is purely vegetable, and acts in a prompt and natural way, regulating the liver to its proper functions and cleansing the bowels of impurities. Try it. Insist on Thedford's, the original and genuine. E. T.

Milk Toast Diet Too Much For Her.

"I doctored for years with only temporary relief. My liver was very bad, after eating I would always have such a fullness in my stomach and my heart would palpitate. I could not eat milk toast without distressing me. Since taking a course of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, more than a year ago, I can eat anything my appetite desires." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. R. E. McROBERTS, Druggist, Lancaster, Ky.

BEREA'S

Five Departments

Open Sept. 17th.

The five great schools that run under the name of Berea College, or Berea Alliance, open the first term on Wednesday, Sept. 17. The number of students applying for admission in the mountain region is so great that it has been decided that no additional students from the north and the Bluegrass can be received this year.

Among the new members of Berea's working force are several men whose coming is of large significance. The Red Cross is placing Prof. G. E. King at Berea to conduct special courses for training community workers and social service. Dr. Carl T. Waugh, now a member in the Y. M. C. A. army work and formerly a professor of philosophy at Beloit, comes as dean of the collegiate department and professor of education. Rev. Dr. Hutchins, formerly pastor of Washington Gladden Church of Columbus Ohio, will be temporary pastor of the Union Church, and Prof. H. H. Groves of Tennessee will take the place of Prof. Hunt of the Normal Department for a year, while Prof. Hunt gives his services to the Red Cross.

Battles on Sundays.

The date of the battle of Salamanca was Sunday, July 2, 1812; Vimiero, Feuente d'Onor, Orthez, Toulouse and Vittoria were also contested on what were known as "Wellington's Red Sundays." Waterloo was won on a Sunday and the greatest attack on Cronje's trenches at Paardeberg was made on a Sunday—Feb. 18, 1900.

GET THEM WITH THE GOODS.

At the end of July the supply of creamery butter showed an increase of 129 per cent against the figures given for the same time last year. Yet the price was 53 cents a pound against the former price of 41 cents.

It may be the fault of hoarding profiteers, or wage-boosting profiteers, or profit-seeking middlemen. The blame probably rests on more than one of the above groups of sinners. We can hardly believe that one group alone would dare to be the sole cause of such extortion.

Whatever the cause, it seems that the government's inquiry is well timed. And it is well to call it an inquiry, and not a crusade, or reform, or any other romantic name. It is an inquiry—a recognition of our ignorance of the facts, and a desire to enlighten our ignorance. And as the blame probably rests on more than

ALL IN A STEW

By LUCY HIFTON.

"Smells awfully good," declared big Bill Printley, coming into the kitchen from the garden and sniffing about. "How long before dinner, Eleanor?"

"About twenty minutes," briskly returned his tiny wife, stooping to turn a pan of biscuits in the oven. "I'm just going to put the potatoes in the stew now."

"Stew's the stuff for hungry gardeners," Bill replied appreciatively. "Lucky I had a vacation today, that garden needed hoeing badly. Hello!" he exclaimed, glancing out of the window. "What's up? Somebody's having tire trouble. Guess I'll run out a minute and see if I can help."

"Eleanor," he called in a tone of mingled awe and excitement a few minutes later, "it's John Gillespie, head of the firm, and it will be quite some time before he gets fixed up, so I asked him in to dinner."

Eleanor stared at her husband in ominous silence. In a moment she found her voice.

"Bill Printley, what were you thinking of?" she demanded. "Today of all days, I'm ironing, too. And we've nothing but lamb stew, biscuits and boiled custard."

"I'm sorry," he whispered, stepping up softly behind her and kissing a saucy curl on her neck.

Eleanor relented. "I'll have to think of something more suitable in a jiffy," she returned, smiling into his great brown eyes.

She stepped into the pantry and selected a jar of ox tongue. She would eat it in thin slices and garnish with parsley. That would be vastly superior to plain lamb stew.

She glanced at the clock.

Fortunately, she had saved some potatoes from the stew. She would cream them. There would be time for a tomato bisque, and with the addition of a few egg whites whipped she would turn her boiled custard into floating island and dot it with currant jelly.

She slipped into a pretty gray voile house dress, and flushed and smiling she welcomed her unexpected guest.

After a few minutes' chat she excused herself, leaving Bill to entertain.

She hurried into the pantry, but stood petrified with horror as she held the platter of choice tongue floating in a pan of milk. In her haste she had left the platter uncertainly perched on the window sill and a good stiff breeze had done the mischief.

Another hasty glance at the emergency shelf revealed a can of crab meat that was too small. Salmon and dried beef were worse than lamb stew. She sighed. She must serve this pheasant dish in a casserole. It wouldn't be bad, after all, with carrots and peas.

"I wonder if you ever eat lamb stew?" asked Eleanor slightly apologetic after the soup course had been disposed.

"My favorite dish," responded Mr. Gillespie. "Nothing beats real home cooking."

After a few mouthfuls, he continued: "It's just like mother used to make for me when I came home from school. And it justifies the tantalizing odors that were wafted out to me when zip! bang! went my tire. I was wishing my good fairy would invite me to dinner when, lo! my tire turned the trick."

Eleanor flushed with pleasure. There was no mistaking his sincerity.

Mr. Gillespie took the lead in the conversation, and before either Eleanor or Bill realized it, he had them telling him their hopes and aspirations.

After his departure, Eleanor looked at Bill a long moment. "What do you make out of it all?" she asked as she hurried back to her ironing.

"He seemed mighty interested in us here in our home," returned Bill dubiously. "But I never flattered myself that he even noticed me in the office. Just a drudge along with the rest of the machinery."

For two weeks the eager look of expectancy in Eleanor's eyes were met by studied cheerfulness on Bill's part as each night he greeted her with, "No news yet, sweetheart."

"Tim—I'm afraid we talked too much," said Eleanor uncertainly.

"Well, if we did it was all Gillespie's fault," defended Bill. "He led us on."

The thought that they had made a grave blunder rankled in Eleanor's soul, but she strove to keep up her spirits for Bill's sake. Then one night, just as she had lost hope, she heard him bound up the steps and the next moment he was in the room. "I got it!" he shouted jubilantly, catching her in his arms.

"Gillespie called me into the office tonight and offered me the job of manager of the sales department. Do you realize what that means, sweetheart?"

She nodded, face aglow. "Not just a pauper raise, but manager," he emphasized. "He had two men of equal ability on the promotion list, but couldn't decide which was more deserving. That stew and our chat told him many things he wanted to know."

"Things happen queer," reflected Bill, as they sat down to their cooling dinner. "Who would ever have thought the day Gillespie punctured his tire we'd land this $5,000 job all in a stew that tickled his jaded palate?"

And now when the Printleys celebrate any further rise in the financial world it's never that delicacy chicken or choice ox tongue, or even a dignified roast that graces the board, but plain lamb stew.

DELIVERY CAR

Wins Big Race After Strenuous Service In Army.

All Competitors Outrun By War
Scarred Veteran of Many Campaigns: 50,000 Soldiers
See Speed Classic.

Merchants, farmers and other users of light commercial cars who appreciate what motorized equipment means in the way of quick and reliable service, will be interested in a race story brought back from France by discharged soldiers. As told by Major Hayes McFarland, who went overseas in command of the 311th Supply Train, the story is reproduced from Automobile Topics of July 12th.

Those Memorial Day races at St. Nazaire and the entirely care-free performance of a battle-scarred Dodge Brothers light delivery truck are still talked of wherever there are doughboys who were coming thru that port about the first of June on their way home. Four first places and two seconds against a mixed field, out of six events scheduled, is a good score for any car. Hence the pride of the 311th Supply Train and of the Motor Transport Officers at Nantes, France, in the little race which they rebuilt in five days out of a truck that had been all over the battle fields and had come finally to the Nantes park. For the car which represented Nantes at the races on La Baule beach near St. Nazaire turned in just such a score, after exactly that war experience.

Fifty thousand soldiers, it is estimated, were waiting at St. Nazaire to have their service records checked up and the last animate traces of their overseas service removed from their persons. For Memorial Day by way of celebration an automobile race was plainly indicated, as the doctors say. When permission was given some three weeks before the event there was a wild rush, to use the words of an officer who was present, to build racing cars in every Motor Transport shop in St. Nazaire, and every town within the limits of Base Section No. 1, S. O. S., for which that well known port is headquarters. Some 40 cars were finally entered, ranging in size from the ever present four whose name needs no mention, to sixes, eights and twelves.

Motor Service Park "767" at Nantes picked the best material it had available, a Dodge Brothers light delivery vehicle which, after hard service at the front, had been driven overland to the park, where it was being kept in general service. To make a racer out of it, the fenders and body were removed, the wheel-base shortened to 100 inches, the compression increased by planing down the cylinder heads slightly, reciprocating parts lightened, and a stock roadster gearset substituted for the commercial gear ratio already in place. With these few changes the car was ready for its mile-a-minute performance in races from one to 49 miles on a beach that was only seven miles long.

"In the first race, one mile against time in a field of ten starters, the little car finished second with a time of 53.4 seconds. It won the second race, 21 miles, free-for-all, with 18 starters, showing 21 minutes 4 seconds for the distance and beating cars considerably larger and usually regarded as more powerful.

"The second day's racing turned out a large crowd to cheer for the little white racer with its red "N" in a circle. The first race of the second day was at 14 miles for light cars only. The Nantes entry won easily; time 13 minutes 19.4 seconds. The next race was a 49-mile free for all with 16 starters. Over this distance the rough surface of the course had a chance to make itself felt, and one of the entrants turned over, killing its mechanician and injuring its driver. The race was won by a composite car. Our Nantes entry finished second, time 46.01.

"The third day of the race meet promised a double winning. The first event was a mile against time for light cars only, and this proved easy for Park "767's" entry, the time being 50 seconds flat. The final was a free-for-all with officers driving at 49 miles. The earlier races had been run with enlisted men at the wheel, and the "N" racer had been piloted by Sergt. Paul Harvey, with Sergt. William Mowry as mechanician. For the last event, Lieut. Noble Van Burkleo replaced the sergeants of the 311th Supply Train. There were twenty entries and on the fourth lap, somewhere between 21 and 28 miles on the way home, the Dodge racer was a mile ahead of its field when the race had to be stopped on account of two serious accidents.

"To properly judge the time, it must be remembered that the beach at La Baule is only seven miles long and narrow. The cars had to slow down to something like 15 miles an hour in making the turns for races longer than the distance. The course was rough, too, and spotted with ditches and bumps. On the last day and this is on authority of an officer who knows automobiles intimately, the car was in as good condition as on the first.

"The car, Sergt. Harvey its driver, and Lieut. Van Burkleo were cited in a letter of congratulation from the commanding officer of the Nantes area for their performance."

THE MAY BASKET
By GENEVA A. ELDREDGE.

Scent of apple blossoms filled Cynthia Smith's living room, a clumsy bee tumbled up and down the outside of the screen door, and now and then a swallow darted across the sunlight, his blue wings glistening. Away down the street sounded the rat-a-tat of a drum, and Cynthia heard the patter of children's feet running toward the town square. Still she sat tense and upright in the old-fashioned rocking chair, her mouth drawn in a straight hard line, her eyes fixed upon the work in her hands.

The screen door squeaked on its spring and a round-faced, brown-eyed little boy squeezed in, his eyes filled with surprise when he saw her sitting there so still, her work in her hands, and he stammered a little as he said: "Wh-why, Aunt Cynth, ain't you going to meet the train and see the p-parade?"

Soft and quick came her answer: "No, dear, not today."

"But Aunt Cynth, they ain't goin' to be no more p-parade days, an' I got on my white suit, an' mother thought maybe you'd like to have a little boy what was all spic and span to go wiv you."

And his little face grew wistful and troubled. He had never seen an Aunt Cynth like this before, so straight and strange.

He meant to know before he left just why she was staying home the day everyone else in town was going down to welcome the boys from France. So he crept up close and whispered: "Is it 'cause Joe ain't comin', auntie?" Tears sprang to her eyes as she gathered the little spic and span boy close.

"Yes, Teddie boy, that's just why auntie isn't going. She can't bear it."

Now that Teddie was sure he felt that he ought to say something to help make auntie happier, so he said as he stroked her face with his fat little hand: "Never mind, auntie; I've got a secret and maybe tonight 'bout dark you'll know it. Maybe right 'fore supper, maybe right after, anyway, don't you come out doors right that time, will you?"

And auntie promised to stay in the house. Then hearing his mother calling he scampered away leaving Aunt Cynth alone with her thoughts. Slowly she closed her eyes and in imagination saw the town square filled with people, the train pulling in filled with returning soldiers, the happy greetings, and far and faint she heard the band and the cheering.

The hot tears trickled slowly down her face as she whispered, "And mine reported missing; my boy, who was the pride of my heart?" And then Teddie's happy little face seemed to shine out, and she remembered what a comfort he had been all the weary months, "and now he is coming to hang me a May basket, bless his dear little heart, and I must cheer up for his sake. I think I will plan a little surprise myself."

So she went into her dining room and set the pretty table, bringing in great bunches of apple blossoms to decorate it with until the room looked like the fairytale in the pink and white dress. She frosted little round cakes and made an iced drink for the crystal glasses, and almost before she knew it, twilight came drifting down. The drums had ceased their rat-tat and happy voices called to one another in the street. "It's almost time for Teddie and his secret," she thought as she patted her hair into place. Then she heard steps tiptoeing up the board walk and a child's quick panting breath, and she smiled the old-time glad smile that she used to greet the boy with who was missing tonight when he came to hang May baskets at the very same door.

When two fat fists pounded hard on the screen door she waited only long enough for a small boy to hide before she opened the door, to find a dainty little basket, all fringed and festooned and fairly bursting with candy kisses, setting on the step.

"Why, how surprised I am," she said. "Who could have left this beautiful little basket here? Surely it's a mistake; some little boy must have thought Susie Grimes lived here."

Just then a small boy in white wriggled out from behind the snowball bush and called breathlessly, "No, my Aunt Cynth, tain't no 'stake, it's my secret and some more of it is 'bind the catalpa tree. You come see." But just then a khaki-clad figure sprang out with wide-open arms, and then Ted's secret was out.

"Oh, Joe," cried Aunt Cynth as she wept in his arms, "how you must have felt not to find me at the train to meet you."

"That's all right, mother; I don't blame you under the circumstances."

"When Ted told me his secret, I thought I'd wait and surprise you."

"Some May basket all around, hey? Say, Ted, it looks like frosted cakes and lemonade in the dining room; let's hurry for mess."

And as mother and son wiped the tears of gladness from their eyes, a little voice shrilled out: "You won't never cry no more on p-parade day, will you, Aunt Cynth?" (Copyright, 1919, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Priceless Persian Rugs.

It is a well known fact that an Oriental never sets foot upon his rug with even the soft sandals that he wears. When his foot is set upon his rug it is entirely bare, and this is the reason why oriental rugs woven hundreds of years ago are still perfectly preserved. The hunting rugs of Persia have a great historical value, as they depict authentically how the phoenix and elephant were hunted in ancient days. Mounted hunters pursuing the lion, deer, and other creatures, both fabulous and real, form the groundwork of all of these rugs.

Torch of One's Own.

As Plutarch tells us: "It is well to go for a light to another man's fire, but not to carry it by, instead of lighting a torch of one's own." A torch of one's own! That is a possession worth having, whether it be a flaming beacon on the hilltop or a tiny taper in the window. We cannot tell how far a little candle throws its beams, nor who is laying his course by its flickering light. The most that we can do—and it is also the least that we should do—is to tend the flame carefully and to keep it steady.—Brander Matthews.

EIGHTH DISTRICT

EXCEEDS QUOTA IN CERTIFICATE SALE

KENTUCKY WINS FIRST HONORS
AND SELLS MORE THAN HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS.

$500,000 DURING SEPTEMBER

People Are Awakening to Value of These New U. S. Securities That Are Absolutely Safe.

In an impromptu selling campaign during the last two weeks of August Kentucky carried off first honors in the Eighth Federal Reserve District by disposing of $105,400 in Treasury Savings Certificates, selling nearly 50 per cent of the quota fixed for the entire district.

There was no preliminary movement to pave the way for the campaign that ended August 31. The mere announcement was made that it was desired to sell $250,000 of the certificates during the two weeks.

A quota of $66,500 was fixed for each state—Missouri, Arkansas and Kentucky, and $50,000 for the city of St. Louis, which comprises the St. Louis Metropolitan District.

The total subscriptions accepted by the Federal Reserve District was $322,500, and the subscriptions received after noon Tuesday would largely have exceeded this figure could the orders have been filled. But the certificates for August were priced at $38 and any order that was received after noon on Tuesday, September 2, at the Federal Reserve Bank in St. Louis could only have been accepted at the September price. And then it must be shown that the purchase was made in August, and the order mailed during the month, if the order could be filled at the August price.

So satisfactory was the result of the sale that Federal Director Wilson has decided for another selling campaign this month. The quota this month is just double that of the August quota, and it is planned to sell $500,000.

Reports from the first day of September selling are most encouraging, and the indications are that the quota will be largely exceeded.

The new form Treasury Savings Certificates are the most attractive securities yet issued by the U. S. government. They are in denominations of $100 and $1,000, and draw interest at the rate of 4 per cent, compounded quarterly.

Miss Rebie Schaeffer, of Sedalia, who had charge of the sales of United States Treasury Certificates and War Savings Stamps at the State Fair at Sedalia last month, accomplished the impossible.

Miss Schaeffer, who is prominent in the social world in her section of the state, and who is a sister of Mrs. Frank Leach, chairman of the Women's Division of the War Savings Organization for Pettis county, was one of the first women in that section of the state to make a trip in an airplane in the presence of the greatest throng that was ever assembled on any fairgrounds in Missouri, carrying with her many thousand pieces of literature. She flew back and forth over the grounds dropping the literature from the heavens and as it fell was enthusiastically received by the people below.

The day following Miss Schaeffer's ascension, the sales of government securities increased amazingly at the War Savings booth in the Education building.

SOME CHAPERON

By MARGARET L. AMERN.

Business was always suspended promptly at one o'clock on Saturdays in the law offices of Spencer and Boyd. Notebooks were tucked away, and typewriter desks were hastily closed. Even Mr. Spencer, the senior partner, usually hurried away to the country club for lunch and an afternoon of golf.

But today he lingered at his desk, although Miss Carroll, his secretary, was preparing to leave. Jimmie, the office boy, was bustling about, attending to the closing of the office with his customary Saturday alacrity. For Saturday was the day when Jimmie and his best girl, as he called Helen Carroll, had their weekly party—the lady financing the affair, for Jimmie's present remuneration did not permit of such lavish expenditures for luxuries. Helen Carroll's kindness was one of the pleasant topics of conversation in the office.

"Where is it today, Jimmie?" asked Mr. Spencer, with an indulgent smile, as the boy stood in the doorway waiting impatiently for Helen.

Jimmie grinned and answered with his after-business-hours familiarity. "Oh, our car is waiting to take us to the hotel for a little five-course lunch, and then to the matinee."

"Which means," Helen interposed, with a pretty blush, "a lunch-counter and the movies. I'm all ready. Jimmie. Come along. Good afternoon, Mr. Spencer."

The senior partner sat in thoughtful silence after their departure. If only his son had fallen in love with a girl like Miss Carroll, instead of with Judith Spalding!

Meanwhile, Helen and Jimmie were hurrying up the street merrily discussing what they would have for lunch.

A passing soldier diverted Helen's attention. She stopped abruptly to gaze after him.

"Doesn't he look lonely, Jimmie?" she said, with pity in her voice and eyes. "And hungry, too. Perhaps he hasn't any money for his lunch. Oh, Jimmie, do you suppose we ought to invite him to go with us? I've just got paid and I have plenty of money with me."

Jimmie was all enthusiasm at the idea. Without waiting for another word from Helen, he ran after the soldier and tapped his arm.

"Me and my lady friend want to know if you'll eat with us. She says you look hungry," he spluttered excitedly. "And maybe she'll take you to the movies, too."

Jimmie introduced his new friend without much ceremony.

"His name's Jimmie, too, and he's got three service stripes, and he says he's hungry, and he'd love to go to the movies."

That was the beginning of a most wonderful afternoon for Sergeant Jim. As charming a girl as he had met in his travels, with golden hair and laughing gray eyes and a complexion like apple blossoms—and an irrepressible youngster—helped him to a precarious perch on a stool at a lunch-counter. The young lady, with tender solicitude, insisted that he have something substantial to eat, but he explained that he wasn't really starving. So he shared their regular Saturday luncheon and enjoyed the apple pie and ice cream fully as much as Jimmie. Afterwards they had gayly purchased a box of caramels. Then they had hurried to the movies. There, while Jimmie gave all his attention to the candy and the screen, Helen and Sergeant Jim conversed in low tones, for the most part oblivious of the silent drama being enacted before their eyes. He told her something of his experiences abroad, and of the battle in which he had received his wounds, from which he was almost recovered. And Helen told him softly of Jimmie, the oldest of four children, and how the lad manfully trudged to and from work every day to save carfare, and carried unappetizing and meager lunches in order to turn over his pay untouched to his mother.

At five o'clock they said a regretful "good-bye" in front of the theater, but not until after Sergeant Jim had managed to draw Jimmie aside for a moment and persuaded him to reveal the young lady's name.

The next Monday morning there was an air of subdued excitement in the office. Mr. Spencer's son, recently home from overseas, was starting in his career as junior partner in the firm. When the young man in uniform, walking with crutches, was introduced to his father's secretary, she was so obviously startled that explanations were in order.

Jimmie was too excited by the turn of events to do much work that day, and it is doubtful if Helen or the new junior partner accomplished their share. Shortly before five that afternoon, after announcing to Helen his intention of taking her and Jimmie home in his auto, Sergeant Jim told his father what he was doing.

At first Mr. Spencer was indignant. "I'll have none of that, Jim," he said sternly. "Miss Carroll is too fine a girl to be trifled with. And what would your friend Judith say? Aren't you practically engaged to her?"

"When a girl tells you to go away because you can't take her to a dance your liking for her ends then and there, dad," young Spencer explained. "And, dad," (his eyes met his father's honest eyes), "I think Miss Carroll is the nice girl I ever met."

The new form Treasury Savings Certificates are the most attractive securities yet issued by the U. S. government. They are in denominations of $100 and $1,000, and draw interest at the rate of 4 per cent, compounded quarterly.

Their Medicine Chest For 20 Years

IT is characteristic of folks after they pass the allotted "three score years and ten" to look back over the days that are gone and mournfully live them over.

I find myself at seventy-one, frequently drifting back a quarter of a century, when I see myself in the little drug store I owned at Bolivar, Mo., making and selling a vegetable compound to my friends and customers, when known only as Dr. Lewis' Medicine for Stomach, Liver and Bowel Complaints.

For many years while I was perfecting my formula I studied and investigated the laxatives and cathartics on the market and became convinced that their main fault was that they did not act on the bowels, but that their action was too violent and drastic, and upset the system of the user; which was due to the fact that they were not thorough enough in their action, some simply being too violent, others too tame, while others would act only on the lower or large intestines, and that they almost invariably produced a habit requiring augmented doses.

I believe that a preparation to produce the best effect must first touch the liver, then on the stomach and entire alimentary system. If this was accomplished, the medicine would produce a mild, but thorough elimination of the waste without the usual sickening sensations, and make the user feel better at once.

After experimenting with hundreds of different compounds, I at last perfected the formula that is now known as Nature's Remedy, which I truly believe goes further African Pygmies.

The historian Herodotus, 2500 years ago, described the African pygmies which he located near the source of the Nile. Herodotus, for once, told the truth, for it is in that region that modern explorers have found them. Stanley described them as having huge stomachs and short legs, and as "leaping about like grasshoppers." One specimen he saw was a full-grown young woman, three inches short of three feet in height, but "perfectly formed and of a glistening sleekness of body, with absurdly large eyes."

Drinking whatever water you desire with meals, but do not use water merely to wash down your throat. Water aids digestion by helping to liquefy the food and by bringing the gastric juices into closer contact with the food particles. Water does not affect the enzymes and weaken them by dilution as some people maintain, because the power of the enzymes depends not on the percentage which is present, but upon their total amount and chemical composition.

CAPITAL BLUNDERS

By BERNICE CONE.

Maida Lane, teacher at Primary No. 5, shrugged into her yellow sweater and went out, locking the door of the empty school house after her. She had always loved yellow. It was, she said, the color of spring sunshine and daffodils. Unfortunately it was also the color of a slip of paper that rustled hatefully in the sweater pocket as she walked—a telegram from Phil Drew.

"Due in New York Monday, 10 a. m. Bride with me," it announced cheerfully.

"Bride with me" had resolved itself into a maddening refrain. Everything that she did kept time to it.

The road from the schoolhouse to her home was an unfrequented one. A little way down it stood a great red oak tree. Bob was waiting there as usual. Quite suddenly Maida threw her arms around his neck and surprised herself by sobbing her heart out against his tan coat. "Woof!" said the collie huskily; "Woof!"

"The worst of it is, Bob," said the girl, sitting up at length. "I haven't the right to feel this way, even. Just because you've gone with a fellow all through high school doesn't make you engaged to him. And if he enlists and goes across the water, and you knit for him, and pray for him, and write to him, and he writes to you, and you send him candy and cigarettes and things, and he sends you souvenirs, and—and—why, you haven't any call to resent it if he gets married, have you? And there's no reason at all why you should get bitter over it."

"And, Bob," continued the dog's mistress earnestly, "if you've so far forgotten your human nature as to be too frankly happy when the letters come, and too openly puffed up over the souvenirs, why, then, you must expect Brookville to smile a little, and pry a little, and pity you some when you receive a telegram like this."

"So we'll be awfully nice to Mr. and Mrs. Philip Drew, but not too nice, or Brookville will know how we feel—and that's one thing, Bob; Brookville may guess that we feel badly, but it's never going to know absolutely certain, sure. Come on, boy; let's be happy! Race you!"

With a brave little attempt at laughter from Maida and a joyous bark from Bob they were off.

On Monday afternoon, as the teacher of No. 5 again reached for her yellow sweater, a shadow fell across the schoolhouse floor. She looked up quickly. Phil Drew's six feet filled the door frame. The sunlight back of him gave to his figure the illusion of a statue done in bronze. Maida's heart began to beat a glad welcome that was as quickly drowned in the refrain, "Bride with me."

She held out her hand formally. "Phil, Drew?" she exclaimed, with a smile and what she considered the proper amount of polite interest. "I'm so glad to see you back again!"

The bronze statue blinked in amazed chagrin. "Didn't you get my telegram?" it demanded.

"Of course. It was so thoughtful of you to let me know just when you were coming. I want to congratulate you," she continued sweetly. "It will give me a great deal of pleasure to meet Mrs. Drew."

"Huh?" inquired the bronze one, too dazed for elegance of speech.

"I'm looking forward to meeting Mrs. Drew," Maida repeated, slightly puzzled in her turn. "Your—your telegram said—"

"That we were due at ten," interrupted Phil. "I hoped you'd meet me."

"Why—" she faltered. "I—I didn't think you would want me to."

Phil frowned. "Look here, Maida," he protested. "I don't know what you're driving at, but you don't seem overjoyed to see me, that's sure. If there's someone else, why don't you say so, and not—"

"No," said Maida with the tragic finality of eighteen. "There will never be anyone else for me."

Lieutenant Philip Drew seized hungrily upon this assurance, and would have seized hungrily upon Maida, but that lady indignantly pushed him away. Her eyes blazed angrily, but there was a hint of tears in her voice. "I think you're the f-funny one," she said, thrusting the telegram into his hands, "to send me this, and then come here and pretend—"

"Ha, ha ha!" scoffed Lieutenant Phil, when he read the message. "That's rich—'Bride with—'. Say, girlie, did you honestly think—why that's Tom Pride—you know. I wrote you about him, my buddy—he's over at the house now; come home with me—best fellow that ever lived. Just a little mistake in capital, that's all. 'Bride with—no, sweetheart, I had to come home to get one of those."

Sad is Sad.

A mother, who was rather fond of the cheaper 10, 20, 30-cent melodramas, one afternoon took her young daughter, who had grown to consider herself above that sort of thing.

The daughter was bored, but the mother was greatly interested, and finally, when the heroine had got into a seemingly inextricable position, broke down and sobbed heartily.

"Mother, I wouldn't cry here," whispered the daughter significantly, accepting the last word.

"Let me alone," replied the other, hysterically. "If a thing is sad, it's sad; I can't cry according to price!" Life.

The first telephone ever placed in a private English house is still to be seen at Marlborough house. It was made in 1878 on board the warship Thunderer and was subsequently set up between the schoolroom and the boudoir of the princess of Wales.

Borbears of the Seal.

It is a curious fact that the fur seal was once a land animal. The seals are actually afraid of water; they would drown if thrown into it, and have to learn to swim by repeated efforts. When once they have been taught to swim, however, they soon forget to walk.

A "Gentleman."

And the scholar said: "Originally the term 'gentleman' (Latin: gentilis), signified well born. A man of gentle birth usually was refined in manners and conduct, and so popular usage has extended the term to all men of chivalrous character; a gentleman 'gives right, right wrongs, fears God and honors the king'."—Exchange.

Value of Uncooked Food.

Man cannot digest and assimilate the mineral elements in rock; hence it is necessary for him to get the elements for structural work from fruits and vegetables, in their fresh, uncooked state; for cooking destroys the chemistry—the chemical synthesis with albumin is lost.—J. H. Tilden, M. D.

WAR SOUVENIR GRENADE BANKS NOW AVAILABLE

THESE WONDERFUL INSTRUMENTS OF DESTRUCTION NOW ON PEACEFUL MISSION.

WHOLE CAR LOAD OF THEM

Banks in Nearly Every City in Eighth District Have Limited Supply.

These Hand Grenade Banks, for which the children and grown-ups of Missouri, Arkansas and Kentucky have been waiting with considerable eagerness for some time, have arrived.

A whole carload of them was shipped by fast freight from Washington by the War Department and consigned to Government Director Wilson at St. Louis for distribution throughout the Eighth Federal Reserve District.

These now harmless little souvenirs, which, when they were made, were powerful instruments for inflicting death on the Boche, and which in the War of Nations proved that they had lived up to their reputation, are now to enter upon a career of usefulness and it is expected that, in the future, they will prove as great up-builders as they were destroyers in the past.

These little grenades, which are small enough for a man to grasp in one hand and hurl many yards, have been divested of their strength. The powerful explosives and the fulminating caps have been removed. A child can play with them in perfect safety and yet, outwardly, the grenade has all of the appearances that it had in actual warfare.

It required much finesse on the part of the government officials and the financiers of the district to place these real souvenirs in the hands of the people. First, treasury officials had to deal with the officials of the War Department and purchase them. Then, because of the first cost of the grenades and the additional cost of removing the explosives, the treasury officials were not able to give them outright as gifts.

That is where the banks of Missouri, Arkansas and Kentucky took a hand in the game. They bought these banks, many thousands of them, from the Treasury Department.

Now they are being given outright to those who are entitled to them. Any person under the age of 18 years who buys one War Savings Stamp (the value of which this month is $4.20) from one of the banks that is authorized to distribute them is entitled to one of the grenades.

Any person over 18 years of age may obtain one of the grenades if he purchases from one of the authorized agents more than one of the War Savings Stamps during the current year.

In many of the cities and towns throughout Arkansas, Missouri and Kentucky, banks have taken advantage of the government's offer and have laid in a supply of these grenades. The person who wishes to avail himself of the offer must needs be in a hurry in purchasing his stamps. The supply is limited and it is doubtful if any more can be obtained when the present supply is gone.

DIRECTOR'S WORK TRAIN.

Head of Big Railroad Resents Calling His Train a Private One.

A Regional Railroad Director was recently visited on his special train by a newspaper reporter. One of the first things the railroad man said was, "Please don't say in your paper that I am here in my 'private train.' Call it my 'work train'".

His idea was obvious. With private railroad cars we have come to connect the idea of luxury, indolence, and great wealth. In all probability this mobile office will not find economy. Let us be wise enough to judge each expenditure on its merits under its own peculiar conditions.

The man who wears threadbare clothes and lives on insufficient and unwholesome food that he may save 70 per cent of his income, may be the least thrifty individual in the community. Stand for WISE expenditure, rather than simply SMALL expenditure.

OPERATOR FAVORS IT.

Sees Advantage of Treasury Savings Certificates in Thrift Movement.

John Connery, president of the Miami Coal Company in Illinois, is so thoroughly "sold" on the thrift idea that he has purchased $15,012 in War Savings Stamps, so that they may be available for distribution among employees of the company and his family.

In many of the Illinois coal mines, the paymaster of the company travels from one mine to another, paying off. Unless the paymaster carries with him a supply of thrift and savings stamps, they are frequently not available for purchase by the miners.

Mr. Connery was so anxious to instill the thrift idea among the miners working for his concern that he used his own capital to put his idea into effect.

500 ACRES

OF THE BEST LAND IN KENTUCKY AT

AUCTION

The famous W. R. Cook or Uncle Jake Robinson Farm, only 1 1-2 miles from that good town LANCASTER,

Friday, Sept. 12th,
commencing promptly at 10:30 a. m. rain or shine.

Indeed a rare opportunity is here presented to the land buyer; a chance to buy a portion of one of those good ones, one everybody knows is a good one, and one you do not have to feel around and ask Bill, John or Ike whether the land is good. This farm has been kept in one family for generations, petted, pampered and taken care of, and handed down from time to time and has always been in gentle hands; hands that build up and do not destroy.

We are subdividing this farm in tracts of 50 and 100 acres, fronting the Danville pike. It is all in grass except 65 acres. 300 acres of old blue grass sod, balance in timothy and clover. 3 good tobacco barns, and one splendid mule barn, 100X50 and one good small house.

Now remember, Mr. Cook debated well and long before he made his decision to sell. This property is going to change hands. Look it over-select the tract you want, and DON'T FAIL TO BE ON HAND AT THE SALE. THE TERMS WILL BE EASY.

We have engaged the famous Lexington Military Band, which will give a concert one hour before and after the sale, and will present those attending with souvenirs.

KIDNEYS WEAKENING?

LOOK OUT!

Kidney troubles don't disappear of themselves. They grow slowly but steadily, undermining health with deadly certainty, until you fall a victim to inevitable disease.

Stop your trouble while there is time. Don't wait until little pains become big aches. Don't trifle with disease. To avoid future suffering begin treatment with GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules now. Take three or four every day until you are entirely free from pain.

This well-known preparation has been one of the national remedies of Holland for centuries. In 1696 the government of the Netherlands granted a special charter authorizing its preparation and sale.

The housewife of Holland would almost as soon go without food as without her "Real Dutch Drops," as she quaintly calls GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. They restore strength and are responsible in a great measure for the sturdy, robust health of the Hollanders.

Do not delay. Go to your druggist and insist on his supplying you with GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES. Take them as directed, and if you are not satisfied with results your druggist will gladly refund your money. Look for the name GOLD MEDAL on the box and accept no other. In sealed boxes, three sizes.

GRAIN GROWERS ORGANIZE CO-OPERATIVE THRASHING RINGS FOR EFFICIENT WORK

Teamwork Helps at Thrashing Time.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

When a man plans to thresh from the field, engages a custom threshing crew to do the work on a certain day and the outfit does not appear until three weeks after the specified time, is it any wonder that the countryman makes a few pointed remarks concerning custom threshermen in general and this one in particular?

Unreliability of custom threshers, labor complications which often arise when two outfits reach a neighborhood the same day, the expense of custom threshing, the careless and extravagant work of some hired machines, and similar factors have caused grain growers in the corn belt to organize co-operative threshing rings for the purchase, maintenance and efficient operation of threshing machinery.

Benefits of the threshing ring are shown in an instance reported by the United States department of agriculture. One large threshing ring which has been particularly successful and which has met all expenses and paid for itself in four years out of the money ordinarily paid by the members for custom threshing is the Up-to-Date Threshing company of Livingston county, Illinois, which is composed of ten members who own 15 farms. The partnership capital originally totaled $3,275, and the equipment included a 20-horsepower steam engine, a water tank, separator, with a 34-inch cylinder, a corn sheller and a second-hand silage cutter, which has been replaced by a new one. The total threshing force usually employed in this ring for field work consists of ten men with teams to haul bundles; five pitchers in the field; three men with teams to haul the threshed grain; two men to help unload the grain at the barn; one man on the stack; one man to operate the stoker; one man to clean up about the machinery; one water boy; and three men with the threshing outfit. This involves a force of 27 men. A ring of this size demands capable management to insure success.

On Smaller Scale.

A smaller threshing ring, organized last year in Fayette county, Ohio, consists of three landowners, whose partnership capital consists of $1,000, which represents the cost of a small 22-inch separator, with a clover-seed attachment, the power being furnished by a 12-24 farm tractor. These farms aggregate 400 acres of small grain, a little outside threshing for hire being done each year. Last year 2,800 bushels of oats, 9,000 bushels of wheat and 100 bushels of clover seed were threshed. The ordinary crew was made up of five men, with teams and wagons to haul bundles; two men with 125-bushel wagon beds to haul grain three miles; one man to manage the outfit, and a boy to help. Bundle wagons were used to replace two or three field pitchers, while the use of a gas engine also dispenses with the water boy. The engineer has time to help considerably about the separator. With this small force this outfit was able to thresh and deliver to the elevator, three miles distant, an average of approximately 750 bushels of wheat a day.

Smaller Units Favored.

During the last two or three years the number of threshing outfits sold to farm organizations has greatly increased, and the tendency at present is toward the formation of smaller co-operative units and the purchase of small outfits. This comes from the necessity for more economical use of labor and the advent of the farm tractor, the power of which can be well utilized to run a small thrasher, which, complete with a wind stacker, self-feeder and weigher, costs about $1,200. Most of the farmers' clubs are small, so that all members may get their threshing finished in about fifteen days. All threshing is completed in seasonal time, so that the grain may be saved to best advantage.

Advantage of Rings.

There are two general methods of ring co-operation, the most common involving the hiring of a threshing outfit, the other its purchase. Threshing rings are beneficial inasmuch as the threshing calendar in a neighborhood may be so arranged that the work can be carried out with the least possible loss of time in moving from farm to farm. As a job nears completion the first men through, knowing their assignments in the next place, may go there immediately and have the grain ready to thresh by the time the outfit arrives and is set up. No time is lost either in transporting for an outfit or in securing a threshing crew. Certain men may be used to best advantage by assigning them to one kind of work for the season. Unless the weather man prevents threshing continues until all the jobs are completed in the circle, and thus little extra work is required in shifting wagon boxes or hay benders. Usually the threshing season is greatly shortened and this favors the timely completion of the subsequent fall work, such as plowing, seedling, distributing manure, and so on. The threshing ring reduces the work of the housewife, as there are less men to feed during the harvest season.

Practically all the threshing rings perform some outside work as accommodation at the customary rates, or to enlarge the ring in order to secure all the necessary help.

When a ring buys all the machinery new—separator, power, clover huller, and possibly a grain sheller or a silage cutter—and builds a shed to house the implements, the total capital under prewar prices required usually amounts to $3,000 or $4,000. When it is possible for the company to hire a good engine or some other part of the equipment, it may not be advisable to buy.

Threshing for the various members of the ring is performed on a business basis, an average day's work being regarded as 2,000 bushels of oats, or about 1,000 bushels of wheat or rye. Record is kept of the time put in by each laborer and the costs of the work are distributed among the members on the basis of the amount of grain threshed. Farmers interested in the organization and promotion of threshing rings may obtain copies of the publication describing them by writing to the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

DEHORNING IS NOT PAINFUL

Shrinkage in Yield of Milk Following Operation Is Very Temporary and Insignificant.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Inquiries are frequently received as to whether the operation of dehorning is very painful, and whether it may not be classed as cruelty to animals. Those who have an extensive experience in dehorning appear to agree that the pain induced by the operation has been greatly overestimated, as careful observation has shown that shrinkage in the yield of milk as well as of butterfat following the dehorning of cows is very temporary and insignificant. On the other hand, the worry, pain and cruelty often inflicted by cattle upon their mates before being deprived of their horns is much more to be considered, and not infrequently results in the death of a valuable animal. A neighbor on an adjoining farm to that owned by the writer a few years ago lost two good milk cows in one winter through their being disengaged by the horns of barnyard mates while out for exercise. He dehorned his entire herd almost immediately afterward. The increased safety of the animals much more than compensates for any loss of beauty resulting from the removal of horns.

WOOL POOL IS REORGANIZED

Members of Idaho Farm Bureau Save $25,000 on Year's Clip—Will Try Experiment Again.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

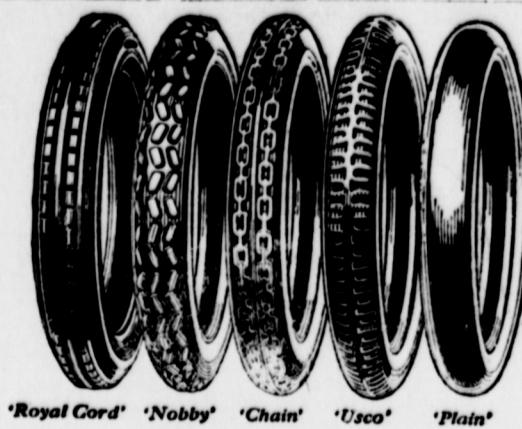

Members of the Gooding County (Idaho) Farm Bureau last year pooled 128,000 pounds of wool, which sold for an average of 60 cents a pound. They had been offered locally an average of 10 cents a pound, and by means of the wool pool they received $25,000 over the local price. Members have met again this year and reorganized for the pooling of the season's clip, and have agreed to deliver wool in good condition to the warehouse.

STUDY DEMANDS OF MARKET

Important Lesson for Poultry Raiser—Uniform Color of Eggs Is Most Desirable.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Every poultry raiser should make a study of the market demands. A uniform color of eggs and flesh in poultry is desirable. A mixed flock will not produce uniform eggs or meat, and eggs from such a flock are not desirable for hatching.

Production of Scent.

No substance that resists to dissolve in water has an odor. It is the actual substance itself floating in particles in the air, as in the case of light and sound. The damper a thing is the more powerful the odor it gives off. A pleasant proof of the fact can be had by walking in a garden after rain. It is the vapor of a liquid that smells and not the liquid in the mass itself.

A SHOCK TO THE COUNTRY

Senator Hitchcock So Characterizes Senator Knox's Attack On the Peace Treaty

INSANE FOREIGN POLICY

Amendment or Defeat of the Treaty Would Be Commercial and Financial Disaster For America, Says Nebraska Senator

Washington (Special).—Declaring that any amendment to the treaty of peace, good or bad, reasonable or unreasonable, means the defeat of the treaty with all its disastrous consequences, Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska made a powerful speech in the Senate today urging that the treaty be ratified without delay and without amendment.

Referring to the recent speech of Senator McCumber, Republican of North Dakota, who voted against the Shantung amendment in the foreign relations committee, Senator Hitchcock said:

"He has shown that the proposed amendment, instead of helping China, deprives her of the benefit of the promises and concessions the United States has exacted from Japan. He has shown that Japan is already in possession of the German rights, privileges and franchises. He has also shown that Great Britain and France are under pledge to Japan to stand by her in her claim, and he has challenged the supporters of the proposed amendment to show how China can possibly be benefited unless, when we reject Japan's promises, we propose to go to war with her and drive her out of Shantung for the benefit of China."

"I think the Senator from North Dakota conclusively demonstrated the folly of the proposed amendment as far as it concerns China and the danger that it involves to the United States."

Senator Hitchcock then explained the inevitable results if the Senate should vote in favor of the Shantung amendment or any other. He said that one or two things would happen: either the President would refuse to go further with the treaty or he would have to submit the amendment to the nations associated with the United States in the war.

"Does anyone believe," asked the Senator, "that the other nations would accept the Shantung amendment?" He pointed out that Great Britain has already ratified the treaty and is under pledge to Japan with reference to Shantung; that France is soon to ratify the treaty and is under the same pledge to Japan.

"Does anyone suppose that Japan herself would submit to such a humiliation before the eyes of the world?" asked Hitchcock. "The answer is simple, he asserted. We would find ourselves out in the cold, isolated from the rest of the world."

"What, then, will the United States do? What will those American statesmen propose who stand for this method of killing the treaty? Some of them will say that Congress can pass a joint resolution declaring a state of peace with Germany. Others say the United States can negotiate a separate and independent treaty of peace with Germany. Those who talk this way evidently have no conception of the enormous benefits and advantages which the United States derives from this treaty which we wrung from Germany at the cannon's mouth. Neither have they any conception of the difficulties involved in negotiating a new treaty with Germany to establish the terms of peace and settle the controversies of the war."

"To my mind it would be suicidal for the United States to throw away the advantages and benefits provided in this treaty. It would be disastrous commercially and financially. It would put us at an enormous disadvantage in our international relations not only with Germany but with those nations which we would thus desert. They would remain bound together by ties of mutual interest. They would enjoy the benefits of the treaty and would not be slow to take every advantage of them. They would resent our desertion."

"Up to this point, I have discussed the possible defeat of the treaty by means of proposed amendments to it. That is the real program and hope of the majority of the committee on foreign relations. It is for that purpose that the treaty has been locked up in cold storage for so many weeks. The enemies of the League of Nations in the Senate are not many compared to its friends, but they control the committee. They have felt justified in retaining the treaty in the committee, holding useless hearings and making killing amendments with the full knowledge that amendments would beat the treaty just as effectively as a refusal to ratify."

"A few, a very few, Senators have declared that they would vote against the treaty because of the League of Nations, but it has remained for the Senator from Pennsylvania (Mr.) Knox to declare boldly against our participation in the treaty settlement."

"To say that he has amazed the country is to put it mildly—he has shocked the country."

"Strangely enough, after months of time and a number of speeches in which his attack on the treaty has been on account of Article I, which contains the League of Nations, he now takes a new position, the formerly favored taking the League of Nations out of the treaty and ratifying the Peace Settlement with Germany. Now he suddenly changes front, declares in favor of deserting the nations associated with us in the war and advocates an unconditional peace or negotiated peace with Germany."

"Was there ever a more insane in international policy proposed? The mixture of poorness and folly it is difficult to see which predominates. Senator Knox goes the limit. He not only proposes that we desert our friends and abandon our obligations, but he suggests that we release Germany from all promises of indemnities and reparations."

"Why not go further and propose that we compensate Germany? That would be a still stronger appeal to German sentiment."

Senator Hitchcock said that he had full faith that the treaty would receive different treatment in the Senate than it has in the foreign relations committee. "In the Senate," he said, "there are 50 men who favor deserting the cause of civilization until the victory in the field has been rendered permanent by a peace settlement with ample guarantees. In the Senate are few Senators who favor releasing Germany from all responsibility for the war, few Senators willing to sacrifice the material interests of the United States which this treaty alone can protect."

"In concluding, what was without doubt one of the ablest speeches that has been made in the Senate for ratification of the treaty without amendment, Senator Hitchcock said:

"I can not close without a few words on the League of Nations feature of the Treaty, which has been so persistently and unreasonably attacked in this chamber. To most of these attacks I have listened. They have varied somewhat, but they all have one characteristic in common—a tremendous exaggeration of possible disadvantages to this country."

"Those who conjure up these possible disadvantages seem to ignore altogether the enormous advantages of organizing the world for peace. They appear to have lost sight of the horrors, evils and dangers of war while in the contemplation of possible disadvantages under the League of Nations. They make mountains out of molehills in reviewing difficulties in the League plan. They are suspicious that while it may benefit every other nation on earth it is so devised as to bring disaster to the United States. They crawl upon the ground with a microscope searching for pitfalls and are unable to look forward to the promised land of peace and order and justice to which the new movement leads."

THIS IS YOUR FIRST OPPORTUNITY TO BUY
EITHER OF THESE GRAND OLD HOMES AT PUBLIC OUTCRY.

ANDERSON PROPERTY.

Now owned and occupied by Simon and Richard Anderson located just beyond the city limits, is just the place you are looking for: consisting of two acres of fertile land with a double lot frontage, 5 large room house, lights and water, beautiful shade trees, similar property on this street is always in demand. Look it over; you can do extensive gardening or poultry raising here. Immediately after this sale will sell the

KINNAIRD PLACE.

Now we have said it all and for always: Never before was this grand and handsome old estate put under the hammer. Due to the higher costs of material and labor only the Rich can build such houses today. Consists of Library, Parlor, Dining room, Breakfast room, Kitchen, Front Hall, Back porch and pantry, first floor: 4 bed rooms, and sleeping porch, bath and hall, second floor; and large dry basement for fuel. All necessary out-buildings, wash and storage rooms, provision house, cellar and cistern.

This property fronts about 150 feet on Danville Street, has a natural and gradual drainage, some fruit trees, shrubbery and a VARIETY of the stately old shade trees, all about such as Elm, Oak, Pine, Maple and Pecans, such as only time, expense and care in the extreme can produce. All buildings are in first class condition and newly painted.

The owners and occupants, Misses Kinnaird will take pleasure in showing you over the property.

Don't fail to look these propositions over before day of sale, cities and towns are made up of "Houses and lots" "For Sale or for Rent" but such places as these are seldom offered for either.

One of the most lucrative ice cream suppers given by the ladies working society in recent years was given at Mason last Friday evening with a large crowd in attendance. The weather was ideal, the moon was lovely and the cakes delightful, not a bad one, as reported by the "cake cutter". All the young folks had a most enjoyable time.

Several days since some of the boys of Rice Academy played hooky from school and made a raid on Mr. Blanks melon patch. On the second day the owner of the patch caught them in the midst of their feast and gave them some straight talk. They arrived home as from school with the parents none the wiser.

The How and Why of Caloric Pipeless Heating

CALORIC
FURNACE
Ex-Original Patented Pipeless Furnace

The CALORIC is not a pipe furnace with the pipes left off. Neither is it an experiment, hastily put together to meet a demand. It is specially designed to heat homes, halls, churches, stores, factories, etc., more uniformly, economically and satisfactorily than they have ever been heated by other systems.

The CALORIC works thru Nature's own laws of circulation by air currents. Warm air rises. Cold air falls. Warm air and cold air cannot occupy the same space at the same time.

HERE'S THE SECRET
In the same volume that the warm air is pumped up into the house, an equal amount of cold air is drawn into the furnace, where it is heated, moistened by the vapor from the two gallon water pan, and then recirculated through the register. This continues as long as the fire burns.

Thus there is a constant circulation of properly moistened warm air. Just as running water purifies itself, so the circulating warm air, passing thru heat of from three hundred to eight hundred degrees, in which no germ can live, is kept pure and healthful.

The CALORIC is guaranteed by the oldest and largest manufacturers of warm air heating systems in the United States. You take no chances when you buy a CALORIC.

Whether your house is old or new, the Caloric is easily installed in one day without disturbing your present heating arrangement.

No hole knocked in your walls, no cellar full of heat-wasting pipes.

The Caloric requires but one register and occupies little space. It burns any fuel, and needs hardly any attention. Makes housework one-third easier, as there is no muss from carrying in coal and carrying out ashes—no smoke, gas or soot. Eliminates fire danger and increases the value of your property.

Visit us and we will gladly supply full information without in the least obligating you to buy.

But 15 cents

What's the use, Folks. What's the Use!

WHY take honest-to-John Tobacco that nature grew for us all—and then "spill the beans" by messing it up with lolly pops?

Velvet isn't fooled with that way.

Velvet has just naturally relied on Nature since it was knee-high to a grasshopper.

First off, it was bred in old Kentucky, wonderland of Tobacco.

Next come, it was cured in the open air, right out with the good ole sunshine. Yes sir.

THEN it was gentled along by its lonesome for two years, while it just kind of thought things over and decided to have no bad qualities.

After these two years in wooden hogsheads it was packed in the jolly red tin you see everywhere, if you're not color blind—and we hope you're not.

As Velvet Joe says:

"The way Nature does things is best for man and his tobacco. You can't fool Nature—an' she won't fool you."

FIFTEEN cents seems a pickayune price, doesn't it, after all that?

Can you think, right off, of anything more or better for a dime and a nickel? And for cigarette smokers—there are 45 mellow cigarettefuls in every Velvet tin.

Velvet sure will be right glad to meet you this very day.

PUBLIC SALE!

of Land, Stock and Grop.

WE WILL SELL ON

Friday, Sept. 19th, 1919

AT 10 O'CLOCK A. M.

The Robert L. Arnold farm located one and one-half miles from Danville on the Perryville Pike. We have subdivided said farm of 200 acres into two farms of 100 acres each. Each tract is well improved, having a two-story frame dwelling and barn on each tract. This is one of the most fertile farms in Boyle county, lies within one-half mile of the noted and famous Gentry Farm that is known throughout the length and breadth of our state for its fertility. Said land grows fine tobacco, hemp, wheat, corn and all crops grown in Kentucky. This will give a man of limited means an opportunity to purchase a small home. This land fronts directly on the Perryville pike and has as much or more pike frontage than any farm its size in the county. Convenient to schools, churches, and one of the best markets in the State, Danville, with all its facilities and advantages is so well known that further comment we deem unnecessary. This farm must be seen to be appreciated.

Prospective buyers will be shown over the place by Mr. Arnold. At the same time we will sell the following described personal property: Six yearling mules, 1 four year old mare mule, 1 two-year old mare mule, 1 five-year old mare mule, 1 seven-year old horse mule, 1 seven-year old gelding, 2 Jersey cows and calves, 2 yearling steers, 30 acres of corn, 2 stacks of hay, 2 stacks of oats, 400 bales of straw, 2 riding plows, 2 cultivators, 1 new Deering Binder, 1 mower, 1 two-horse wagon. A lot of tobacco sticks, and many other articles used on the farm.

For further information telephone 529, 75, 261-W or 33, or write

Sun Pressure on Earth.

The light of the sun exerts a pressure of 70,000 tons on the earth, according to a British scientist.

Life Much as We Make It.

No person is ever condemned to a small life. Many are assigned to small circumstances, but our lives may be as large as we want them to be. For the only limits of life are aspiration, sympathy and interest.—Selected.

How to Make Money Go.

Pick up a half dollar with two needles, or pins, by placing the points on the milled edge of the coin diametrically opposite each other. By keeping the needles firmly pressed against the coin it will be held with sufficient firmness. Then blow against the coin, directing your breath either above or below the center line and it will spin round at a great rate, producing a buzzing sound.

Paths of Democracy.

To accustom oneself to disregard the accidents of manner and station sufficiently to see the man as he is, to have a clear sight for genuine character under any of the disguises of unfamiliarity and prejudice, to know how simple and how common are the elements that go to the making of manhood, are the paths that lead to life in democracy.—George E. Woodberry.

Penon de Coron.

They persons besides Chinese traders at the forbidding shores of frosts and Penon de Coron. The rugged and jagged outlines against the southern sky, is lost upon the natives, so see them only as a source of revenue. By swinging from ropes or climbing ladders they scour these rocks for tiny nests from which are concaved the famous bird nest soup. These nests they sell to oriental traders by thousands, who come regularly to barter for this delicacy of Chinese fare.

Cloth From Bark of Tree.

The famous "tapa" cloth of Polynesia is made from the inner bark of the paper mulberry. When of the finest quality it is bleached to snowy whiteness and fine as muslin. In tropical Africa the inner bark of a leguminous tree is utilized in the same way. Indeed, it is surprising to learn how widely tree barks are employed as material for clothing the world over. And in the West Indies grows the "lace-bark tree," which yields a delicate tissue so like lace that many articles of feminine adornment are made from it.
